AFTER THE "SOCIAL CLUBS." For Not Paying $500 License. The police at Newport News have begun aggressive action against the "social clubs" which have grown up under the Mann liquor law. Managers of three clubs were tried on charges of selling liquor without a license. The cases were continued, the men being placed under $500 bond. The Council levied a license of $500 on each club, which the clubs resisted, claiming it is unconstitutional.
